Christian county will probably present a distinguished candidate for the State Senate next year in the person of Hon. John Franklin Bible. Mr. Bible is being urged by many friends to permit the use of his name as Christian county's candidate, which would of course mean the nomination as it is this county's turn to name the Senator. While Senator Salmon is not averse to a renomination, it is understood that he will concede to Christian the right to name the candidate.

Mr. Bible came to Kentucky two years ago from Ionia, Mich., where he had been Mayor and also a nominee for Lieutenant Governor, and a recognized leader of the Democratic party in Michigan. He is a native Georgian and his wife, who died a few years ago, was a daughter of the late Mr. John H. Bell, Sr., of this city. As manager of the Mogul Wagon Co. he has taken rank with Hopkinsville's foremost business men; and is President of the Kentucky Manufacturer's Association organized last spring.

Mr. Bible bears a striking resemblance to Wm. J. Bryan before Mr. Bryan took on so much flesh. He is an orator of wide reputation. His memorial address at the annual service of the Elks last year was a gem of eloquence, pathos and eulogy. He is equipped by experience and a close study of public questions to become at once a leader in the Senate. His nomination and election would reflect credit on the Democratic party not only of Christian county but of the State.

His funeral services were held at the residence of Mr. Hugo Hisgen yesterday afternoon at three o'clock by Rev. E. B. Landis, assisted by Elder H. D. Smith. The body was interred in Riverside Cemetery with Masonic honors.

A committee was also appointed to arrange to take the members of the Fiscal Court to Mammoth Cave in autos, at the Good Roads meeting Oct. 4 and 5.

Park Dramatic Company Completes Week's Engagement Here.

The Park Dramatic Co. will close a week's engagement here tonight, with matinee this afternoon. The company is a good one and their patrons are well pleased with their entertainment.

At noon yesterday the last juror in the Tom Slaughter murder case was secured and trial was entered into. Slaughter is the negro who went into the store of Mr. Jenkins at Edgerton and shot him down in a cowardly and brutal manner. One jury gave him a death sentence, but the higher court granted a new trial. The case is one of the worst murder cases ever tried here.

The trial of Bud Word, col., for the murder of Ed White, col., over 50 cents, was given to the jury yesterday morning. The final speeches were made Thursday night by Herman Southall and Alvan Clark and Mr. Smith closed for the State yesterday morning.

The cases against D. S. Shrum, selling soft drinks without a license, Frank Lyle and James Henry carrying concealed weapons, and Harry Kendrick, gaming, were dismissed, and a large number were continued.

Frank O'Dell was fined $100 for malicious shooting and James Henry $25 for the same offense.

Frank Lyle was fined $50 for shooting with intent to kill.

Oscar Jones, disturbing lawful assembly, fined $25.

Dave Long, breach of peace, fined $10.

The Acme Mills cases are set for trial today and trial will very probably be entered into.

Adays ladies are far more inclined to buy their garments ready made than ever before, for the large firms in the country engaged in these exclusive lines of manufacture can furnish anything that may be called for.

The O. G. Sprout Co., the "walk a block and save a dollar" people, had a special opening yesterday. In this sale they made a terrific slaughter in prices on wearing apparel, hats, gloves, hose, shoes and gloves of the same shade. Of course this lightens "hubby's" purse, but Daine Fashion cares nothing about that.

The three leading milliners of the city, J. H. Anderson & Co., Frankel's Busy store and Miss Fannie Rogers, had on display Thursday and Friday the prettiest line of ladies' hats that they have ever brought here. Miss Rogers deals exclusively in millinery, but the two former are among the largest dealers in ladies' ready-to-wear suits and they have eclipsed themselves in placing before their lady patrons the most elaborate as well as plainer garments that catch the fancy of the gentler sex. DAYS OF REAL PUNISHMENT.

French master bakers who, by refusing to bake, placed Toulouse in fear of a bread famine, would have had but a sorry time of it in the past. In the sixteenth century, for instance, the French baker was forced to make bread, and bread of the weight and quality required by law, "on pain of being scourged." Occasionally there were defaulters, and then the authorities moved. The offenders were occasionally condemned to be "whipped naked at the cross roads." And more elaborate punishments were arranged. In 1521, for instance, four bakers were conveyed by the police to the porch of "Notre Dame" bareheaded, and each carrying a taper weighing two pounds, "there to beg pardon of God, of the King and of justice for the frauds which they had committed in the fabrication, and in the deficient weight of their bread."

PIANO LESSON FOR CLAUDE

Sister Lucinda Explains About the Piano's Moods and How They Are Affected.

"Lucy," said Brother Claude to Sister Lucinda, "it seems to me the piano sounds remarkably well this morning."

"It does sound well this morning," said Lucinda, "but there's nothing remarkable about that. The piano with its strings is like you with your nerves. Sometimes when you are not feeling well, when you are uncomfortable and unhappy and your nerves unstrung, you are apt to be dull or raspy, and then when you are feeling well and your nerves are all right you are gay and cheerful. And it is just the same with the piano; it has its moods. Let the weather conditions be unfavorable and the piano may be dull and even out of tune; but let the conditions be just right for it, as they are this bright morning, and it answers musically in every note. The piano depends on conditions, just as you do. Didn't you know that?"

And Claude said he hadn't known it, but he knew it now.

LIGHTING THE SUMMER HOME

Lantern Lamps Will Do the Work If Gas and Electricity Have Been Cut Off.

When gas mains and electric light plants fail to connect with the summer home do not rely upon the kerosene lamp which may be carried about in the hand and is liable to be set down near a curtain by some careless maid or guest. Have in the lower rooms and in all the halls lantern lamps which swing from the ceiling and near the center of the living room place several substantial table lamps which cannot possibly be toppled over. Then provide for each sleeping chamber a candlestick equipped with a big, low candle and a clear crystal globe and the cottage will be reasonably safe from fire.

There is, however, an extinguisher which should have a place in every room. This is merely a quart or so of ordinary flour which, if thrown upon an incipient blaze, will promptly extinguish it. Kept in a tin box labeled "In Case of Fire in This Room," and placed where easily accessible, you need not lie awake nights, haunted by the fear of having the roof burned from above your head before morning.

SUPERIOR PEOPLE.

The censors, the superior people who lead them and tell them what to like and how to like it, have indeed an unhappy habit of making a show of themselves at times. The professional critic, especially the critic who is forever on the lookout for heresies in art, often reminds us of the professional grammarian.

It is one of the ironies of the ordinary school grammar book that the examples of bad English are all drawn from good authors. When the grammarian undertakes to illustrate some incorrect usage it is his habit to pick a line from the very best author he possibly can find. And as he is never content to invent an illustrative sentence or to pick one from an obscure source, but must always go to one of unquestionable merit, so it comes about that such authors as Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Swift, Addison and De Quincey stand out on every page in the quality of horrible example.

WAS MERELY CONFUSED.

Evidence that William Parker, colored, had tried to hitch his horse to his wagon while it faced the wrong way in the shafts, was not enough to convince Acting Judge Averill in police court, that Parker was intoxicated, and he was dismissed in police conduct, however, he was fined $3 and costs. Parker was arrested Saturday night at Blake and Walnut streets. His excuse for the odd position of the horse was that boys there were bothering him, and that they had continued unhitching his horse every time he tried to get into his wagon. Parker admitted that when the police came he began to object and that he may have been disorderly.—Indianapolis News.

CULTURE OF THE LIMA BEAN

Dwarf or Bush Variety Is One of Best Vegetables That Can Be Grown for Home or Market.

(By J. W. GRIFFIN.)
The Lima beans, both the pole (those that require poles or trellises for support) and the dwarf or bush forms that do not make any vine, are of the best vegetables that we grow in the garden, either for home use or for market.

There are many varieties of each. By some, the small-seeded varieties are preferred, as the flavor is finer and the bean is not so large and coarse. I think this rather a matter of custom, for I was very much in favor of the small variety until I tried the larger ones and I find if there is any difference in quality, flavor and texture, the large one excels.

The dry beans are just the same as those just matured, the only difference is, there is a greater per cent of water in the green ones than there is in the dry.

This water may be returned to the beans by soaking them over night in lukewarm water. In the morning the beans will look just as they did when full grown and when served like this water the difference will be difficult to tell.

There are many varieties of each kind—the running and the dwarf, or those of the bush form. I grew the King of the Garden, one of the large pole varieties, for several years and found it very good as to yield and quality.

The pole Limas are better yielders than the bush variety, but there is more labor attached in growing the pole variety; however, the difference in yield overcomes this to a great extent.

I find that the best methods of growing Lima beans is to use a trellis. In constructing these trellises, the end posts should be set deeply and well braced. The bottom wire may be of No. 12 or 14 (any light wire will do), but the top one must be of No. 9 or 10, as the weight of the vines is great. Brace the end posts well and set small posts every 10 or 15 feet and staple the wires to these. When more than one trellis is to be made side by side, the distance between them should be six feet and the trellises should run north and south—this will give sunshine to each side, and will insure more perfect fruit.

GARDEN and FARM NOTES

The ordinary farmer will gain by stacking his grain.

The clover should be cut as soon as it is in blossom.

Deep-plowed land has a great capacity for storage of moisture.

A heavy crop of weeds will check the growth of the clover a great deal.

The grain binder is the most satisfactory implement for cutting timothy seed.

Some grow clover; if nowhere else, sow in corn after the cultivation is over.

The most important factor in soil improvement is growing leguminous crops.

The easiest way to eradicate weeds on the farm is to prevent their going to seed.

Silage made of corn and soy beans is more digestible than that made from corn silage alone.

One of the qualities of the soy bean that commands it to the stock feeder is its protein richness.

Much of the feeding value of the soy bean depends upon how the crop is managed after it is cut.

The best stock pea for grazing in the field is the black, Everlasting, Red and Red Ripper are also good.

The silo means excellent feed stored in small space. Just what is needed when the grass in the pasture is dry.

Protein that is grown upon the farm is often more palatable than that which is purchased in concentrated form and it is also cheaper.

GAME AND FISH COMMISSION ACTIVE

INTERESTING INTERVIEWS WITH THE

EXECUTIVE AGENT.

J. QUINCY WARD TALKS.

REAL ADVANTAGE IN THE PROTECTION OF PROPERTY FROM TRESPASSERS.

CHARACTER OF COMMISSION.

Executive Agent Ward today gave out the following interview concerning the new law, its operations and its benefits to sportsmen and land owners.

"Game protection in the United States has developed along some what broader lines than in other countries. Its object is not solely to preserve a few animals and birds to furnish sport for a limited class, but to protect and increase useful species for the benefit of the people in general.

"The personnel of the new Game and Fish Commission guarantees a faithful and efficient enforcement of the laws of the State which are designed to preserve not only game animals and game birds, but also birds of song and plumage and those which are beneficial as destroyers of injurious insects and noxious weeds. While securing the support of the sportsmen, it benefits the farmer by increasing the species which are useful to him and commands the interest of that ever-increasing class of persons who find health or recreation in observing or studying nature.

"With the development of the legislation for the protection of fish and game has occurred another development intended to afford greater protection to land owners and tenants. This legislation took the form of penalties incorporated in the game laws for certain forms of trespass and vandalism. The land owner had, and still retains, practically complete control over the game on his premises, since he can to a certain extent fix the conditions under which it shall be taken, and has absolute right to say whether or not it shall be hunted at all; but the facilities for enforcing his desires were of such a personal character that he hesitated taking the vigorous action necessary to get results.

"Now, however, with the inauguration of a State department for the protection of game and fish with a system of wardens throughout the State whose sworn duty it is to enforce the laws, the activities of these wardens in each county, the policy of publicity and education of the department and the interest of the true sportsmen and law-abiding citizen who takes out his license; the enforcement of trespass laws becomes a matter of course, the rights of property owners is established alike in the mind of the careless citizen, the thoughtless friend and the vicious lawbreaker.

Value of Game.

"That the game on the farm has a money value is not always recognized, or, if so, seldom receives due consideration. Rabbits, quail, and other game taken during the open season, afford not only an important addition to the table, but may save considerable expenditure for other meat. The value of this game is, therefore, not merely the amount it would bring in cash or in provision at the country store, but rather what it saves in the cost of other meats. This economic result, this increased food supply, is of certain benefit to the whole State and makes the work of the commission in enforcing the game and fish laws of great public interest and worthy of every man's support.

As To Fish.

"Now as regards fish: "You will notice that ours is a Game and Fish Commission and our duties and purposes embrace the care and propagation of fish as well as game, and, as a matter of fact, the fishermen will reap the benefits of its activities along with the man with a gun and dog, and while the law does not require a license to fish the good sportsman and public-spirited angler should, and should will contribute to the game and fish protection fund by taking out a license.

"The last Legislature made a handsome appropriation for the purchase of land adjoining the State Fair for the purpose of establishing a hatchery which will be operated by the United States Government, in the propagation of fish for distribution and educational purposes of exhibition. The stocking of fish is a work which, thanks to the facilities offered from the department at Washington, can be taken up right away, and already this department is in communication with the Fisheries Commission looking to the shipment into the State, for distribution under our supervision, of a large consignment for stocking purposes.

Law's Prohibitions.

"The laws of this State prohibit, and provide penalties for, the use of wing-net, set-net, gill or trammel net or other contrivance for purpose of catching fish or hindering the passage of fish in running streams; for the use of drugs, or other substance whereby fish in running streams; for the use of drugs, or other substance whereby fish are sickened, intoxicated or killed, or the water polluted or rendered unfit for use. It is unlawful to use dynamite or other explosive agent with intent to injure or catch fish, and if there is any one thing that will claim the attention of the commission in its activities it will be the apprehension and vigorous prosecution of the dynamiter who ruthlessly destroys thousands of small fish by this barbarous method."—From The State Journal, Frankfort, Kentucky.

TWO FISH WITH ONE HOOK

Creature, Once Hooked and Twice Swallowed, Had More Than His Share of Adventure.

A singular catch of eels is communicated to the London Field by one of its readers. Special sympathy is due the unlucky creature who, once hooked and twice swallowed, had more than his share of misadventure.

At Woodlands, near to Ivreargill, a lad of twelve years and myself amused ourselves setting side lines in a swamp creek, baiting a small triangle hook with rabbit-flesh tied on with a file flax fiber.

One evening my little friend cried in excitement, "Oh, do come here! I've got a whopper!" On going, I found a heavy eel (it subsequently weighed seven and one-quarter pounds) on the line, and on pulling it out was astonished at the way in which I found it secured. The line was tied to a flab-bush, and thence I found it entered the eel's mouth, came out again at the gill, and again, with hook and bait, disappeared down the eel's gullet. I carried it as it was up to the homestead, and in the presence of host and family opened it, and found inside a small eel about twelve to eighteen inches long, with the hook and bait in its belly.

This little chap had first swallowed the hook and bait, next was swallowed by the big eel, then crawled out through the gill, and was a second time swallowed by the big fellow, who, in the fierce struggle that followed, had drawn the loop so tight as to pull his head and neck into a curve, and had actually torn the gill through for an inch.

On two or on three other occasions I have found that a small eel that has swallowed the bait, and been in turn swallowed by a big eel, has crept through and hung outside the gill of its captor; but this is the first time I have heard of one being twice swallowed.

WENT TOO FAR.

Scientific managers should not go as far as Hussler went. Hussler was the proprietor of a tremendous factory where scientific management had reduced the motions of every hand from 800 to 17. Hussler attended a very fashionable wedding one day, a wedding where the ceremony was performed by a bishop, assisted by a dean and a canon, and in the most impressive part of the wedding Hussler, overcome by his scientific management ideas, rushed up to the altar and pushed the bishop and canon rudely back. "Here, boys," he said, "one's quite enough for a little job like this."

LOVE MAGIC IN WORDS OF SONG

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS.

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Sunderland took his soft hat from the hall tree and adjusted it to his head with considerable degree of precision. His movements for the moment were all more or less undecided because of the weighty problem that held his mind captive. He spent a few more moments over the angle of his hat, then went out into the busy streets.

Naturally Sunderland's footsteps took him in the direction of his favorite haunts, the old second-hand shops. He stood aimlessly looking over the musty and dusty contents of the windows and all the time he was asking himself the question, "Shall I ask Enid to marry me?"

Sunderland's fingers were unconsciously running through a stack of well-worn music and he suddenly realized that if Enid had possessed even a talent for the lightest of music he could have care more for her. He was not a musician, nor even a critic, but he felt that his home would be incomplete without a little music. His mother had always played and sung, and his most pleasant recollection was of the twilight evenings his mother had gladdened with her songs.

Sunderland was looking through the old music now with conscious interest. He drew a swift, sharp breath, then sighed; it was as if a gentle presence were hovering over him. He had found a song his mother used to sing. The children had always asked for it because it was a fairy legend and spoke of elves and hobgoblins.

A longing to hear the song again stole over him. With a vague idea of asking someone to sing it for him, Sunderland bought the copy and left the shop. Then with his usual analytical turn of mind he fell to wondering who had owned the song and just how it had reached the second-hand shop. He looked for a name on the music and found one.

"Inez Claire," he read, and then in faint pencil scrawl beneath he made out the name of a big studio building. "Now the question is," he pondered, "whether Inez Claire has become a great operatic singer or whether failure has prompted her to dispose of it."

And while Sunderland strove to weave an atmosphere about the song the memory of Enid Valentine was lost and in its place a desire to find the girl who had sung his mother's song possessed him. He told himself that it was not a romantic sense that prompted him; it was merely a longing to hear the familiar song.

Because his time was his own for the moment he made his way to the studios mentioned on the song. Arriving there, he learned that Miss Claire had left a year or so ago. After much inquiry he was given an address in the country to which her mail had been forwarded.

More or less discouraged, but with accented desire to find her, Sunderland went his way.

In the course of a day or so he accepted an invitation from Jimmy Dale to spend a few days with him in the country, the suburb being the one to which Inez Claire had gone to after leaving the studio building.

On their way home from the station Jimmy drew up at a small violet farm. "The master wants me to bring her some violets for the dinner table," he said by way of explanation. "You had better come in. There is a peach of a girl here—a friend of my mother."

Sunderland followed. At the far end of the hothouse they caught sight of the mistress of the violets. She was gowned in a simple frock of lilac and made an exquisite picture there among the millions of purple blossoms. Sunderland was guilty of hurrying his footsteps.

"She is making a small fortune raising violets," whispered Jimmy Dale. "How is the Queen of Violets today?" he inquired by way of greeting the girl.

"Splendid," she returned with a happy little laugh.

"Miss Claire, Mr. Sunderland!" Jimmy introduced the pair familiarly.

The smile that dawned over Sunderland's face surprised even Current Comment.

The latest news from Washington is that Dr. Wiley's baby has cut a tooth.

News comes that a negro has been lynched away out in California by workmen on the Los Angeles aqueduct. Same old story.

Los Angeles has appointed a woman police officer and Boston has nominated a Chinaman for the Legislature. Next!

As Hopkinsville school elections are to be held under the general school laws, women who vote in them do not have to register. Under the special law controlling the white schools, some women have had suffrage for years, but very few of them have ever cared to vote.

COOK'S DRUG STORE

The Number of Eggs American Hens Lay in a Year.

The following is taken from the current issue of Farm and Fireside: "Chanticleer may well crow for Biddy these days, in view of her industrial performance. Ten years ago our annual home-produced egg allowance per capita was 207, which had a market value of $1.86, or 9 cents each. The last census report gives the annual per capita egg allowance a decade later as 200, but the value of each egg had advanced to 1.7 cents, or our egg-supply for the year cost each of us $3.40. Collectively, our American biddies filled a sizable egg-basket containing eighteen billion eggs. These eggs would require 6,500 full-capacity freight-cars to transport them to market."

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to house-keeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health. If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief." —Mrs. BENJ. H. STANSBERRY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now. For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

Trust Department

The first obligation resting upon the individual who is possessed of property is to make a Will. The time to do this is when the faculties are unimpaired.

The proper handling of an estate entails burdens which a testator should hesitate to impose upon a friend, and demands an amount of time and care that few can give. Moreover, there is always the risk that the executor, if an individual, may die before the estate is settled.

When naming a trustee, guardian, agent, receiver, registrar, etc., remember we are equipped to perform the work of all these offices, efficiently, economically and with absolute safety.

THE SCRAP BOOK

ST. LOUIS AN OLD CITY.

St. Louis was founded February 15, 1764, as an Indian trading post, by Pierre Laclede Linguee, acting for a mercantile company which had received from the French director general of Louisiana exclusive trading rights with the Indians on the Missouri river. It became the capital of upper Louisiana the following year, and remained under French control till 1803, though the treaty of Paris, of 1763, had given it to Spain. By the cession of Louisiana to France, 1800, it again came under French jurisdiction, and so remained till the purchase of the entire territory by the United States in 1803. The settlement was incorporated as a town November 9, 1803. The town received a city charter December 9, 1822. In 1870 the former city of Carondelet was annexed and in 1875 the city was separated from all county authority.

HORSES STILL IN DEMAND.

The horse is not being replaced by the automobile, said Charles Schell, president of the National Harness Manufacturers' association, in opening the twenty-sixth annual convention of the association at the Hotel Victoria.

There are more horses in this country than ever, and they are commanding just as high prices as formerly in the market, according to Mr. Schell. There is just as great a demand for harness and the manufacturers have sold more harness during the last year than ever before.

More than 200 members of the association, from practically every state in the Union, were present when President Schell called the convention to order. This is the largest attendance in the history of the organization.

TALKING CAT.

A cat named Peter is making a reputation in the German city of Hamburg, as it is stated Peter speaks very clearly. The animal is attracting considerable attention in scientific circles, and experts from the zoo are to examine Peter. Some time ago Peter's mistress was very much surprised when, instead of the expected "Miau" which answers a call, the cat distinctly pronounced the word "No." This was already wonderful. But what is still more so is that the cat was taught some other simple words which it learnt quickly. "Miau," "Anna" (this being the name of its mistress), and others were soon used quite easily by the cat.

UNUSUAL INDUSTRY.

From a start of six head of deer, an Indiana farmer increased his flock to seventy in fifteen years. The deer raising proved quite profitable, the farmer selling several deer each year.

the venison bringing 50 cents per pound. He also makes a shipment of horns once a year. The bucks shed their horns in March each year, and they are sold for the making of knife handles.

MORE MEN THAN WOMEN.

The world's total population is estimated at 1,700 millions, out of which the proportion of the sexes is known for 1,038,000,000, the ration being 1,000 males to 990 females. The ratio varies very considerably in different places. In Europe there were, for every 1,000 men, 1,027 women; Africa, 1,045; America, 964; Asia, 961; Australia, 937. The maximum proportion of women is found in Uganda, 1,467; the minimum, in the Alaska gold fields and the Malay states, with 391 and 381 respectively.

ANCIENT REMEDY FOR BALDNESS.

Baldness may be becoming more common; but it is not by any means a modern affliction. A French Egyptologist has unearthed a papyrus that gives a recipe for the cure of baldness, prepared for a king who reigned some six thousand years ago. The prescription was made for the king's mother. This earliest of hair tonics was a salve composed of dates, the paws of dogs, and the hoofs of asses, mixed and boiled in oil. As no testimonial from the king's mother has been discovered, the salve cannot be recommended.

PEN POINTS OF POWDER.

Pens for writing purposes are being manufactured today in Germany by a process which is exciting curiosity. The trouble found with steel pens is that they oxidize easily and the ink sticks to them. This fault is not to be found with gold pens, but, on the other hand, these are too flexible to be entirely satisfactory. Moreover, in order to form a point suitable for writing purposes, the material of that part of the pen has to be mixed with some hard metal like iridium, and this operation is both complicated and expensive. The new pen is of tantalum and comes to the manufacturer in the form of a black powder. The pen that is made of this has the tenacity of steel and the flexibility of gold.—Harper's Weekly.

FIRST CHERRY ORCHARD.

Cherries were first cultivated in England about a century before Christ, but the best modern species of fruit were introduced into Kent from Flanders about the beginning of the sixteenth century. One of the very first cherry orchards was that at Teynham, near Faversham, from which much of Kent was afterwards supplied and the "Garden of England" still maintains its supremacy, the chief orchards being along the Kentish border of the Thames, the Darent, and the Medway. Bushino, Venetian ambassador to the court of James I., relates that it was a favorite amusement in the Kentish garden to try who could eat the most cherries, and give details of one match wherein a young woman won with 20 pounds at a sitting.

GOT HIS LETTER MAILED.

To Joseph Fleet of a small town in Illinois, fire and letter boxes look alike. He had written to his wife informing her of his intent to leave the strenuous city of Chicago and return to his own quiet territory; the letter he slipped into the fire-alarm box? To say the least the city was cross with him. The mistake only caused a fireboat to steam down the river; swing two lines of hose astore; drew five fire engines, two truck companies and Fire Chief Seyerleib to the scene; called out two fire insurance auto patrols; stopped work on the part of the office force in five big office buildings, and drew a crowd of 1,000 people. What did Joseph Fleet cost the city?

OLD SUPERSTITIONS.

To the ancients an eclipse of the sun was outside the law of nature, and a presage of dire events. In Rome, it was held to be blasphemy against the gods to ascribe this event to natural causes, and among the pagan peoples the inexplicable darkness that blotted out the glory of the fire-ball, the source of light and life was accompanied by lamentations and horrible fears. Even now in this modern world those Chinese who have not cut off their pigtail and studied scientific texts believe that great dragons are trying to devour the sun, and with brazen pots they make terrific noise to scare away those monsters.

TELEGRAPH BOY STEEPLEJACK.

An English telegraph boy named Woolaston of Brockham, Surrey, has recently attained local fame. He was entrusted with a telegram addressed to the foreman of a firm of contractors who were repairing the village church spire. When the boy arrived at the church the foreman was at the top of the scaffolding which surrounded the steeple. The lad would not part with the telegram, but ascended the scaffolding and delivered it to the man to whom it was addressed. The reply was written at an altitude of some 150 feet, and Woolaston made the descent without assistance.

"Under Way."

No doubt originally the expression had to do with weighing anchor, and the progress given to the ship by hauling her up to the anchor being continued by wind or stream. Probably "under weigh" was more correct, but today the above spelling is usually adopted. Quite recently in a London, England, court, Judge Lumley Smith, K. C., when trying a collision case, asked if there was any authoritative way of spelling "under way" or "under weigh"—which was accurate? The leader of the admiralty bar at the court, answered that for many years the word had been spelled "under way," and he believed that was generally accepted in official quarters.

CURE FOR IDIOTY.

A remarkable operation has just been performed with great success on an imbecile child of Professor Erwin Payr, director of the surgical clinic attached to the University of Leipzig, Saxony. The professor planted a piece of the thyroid gland taken from a healthy child born of a healthy mother into the liver of an imbecile child, who immediately afterward began to improve in intelligence, which steadily increased until a complete cure was effected and the patient was discharged from the clinic.

FARM and GARDEN

PREPARE FOR WINTER WHEAT

Grain Farmers Plow Immediately After Barley or Oats Is Harvested —Prevent Evaporation.

Oats and barley stubble land intended for winter grain and to be seeded to grass should be plowed early and harrowed soon after plowing, so the ground can settle. Heavy horses should be plowed with three horses. We use the sulky plow, set to cut an even furrow and a good depth. Harrow and roll before the plowed ground dries out. A fine, melior top soil will prevent evaporation of moisture, and it can be put in nice order for drilling with a second or third working with the spring-tooth harrow and roller, says a writer in the Baltimore American. Land plowed just before sowing is too spongy; it should be plowed at least two weeks before the train is drilled. Expert grain farmers plow immediately after the barley or oats is harvested and then harrow and roll. When oats or barley precede a crop of winter wheat the land is much drier than a properly managed summer fallow, and if the season should be dry and hot it is difficult to get such land mellow, and moist enough for germination of grain. If barnyard manure is to be spread over the field it will pay to hire a spreader for the manure can be spread so much better, as the spreader cuts the manure fine and spreads an even and a regular coat over the entire ground. Two active men with a two-horse spreader will haul and spread a large pile of manure in a day. The regular price for the use of a spreader is 15 cents per day. If a spreader cannot be had, haul and spread direct from wagon or cart. The manure spread one day should be harrowed into the ground the next; there is no loss of plant food from the manure drying out from action of sun and wind. Spread 12 two-horse wagon loads of rotted manure and drill the grain in with 250 pounds of a good animal bone fertilizer to the acre. The manure and fertilizer will give a larger yield of grain and a better quality of straw than either manure or fertilizer used alone.

the stalk so the second man has no trouble in putting a band on a large stalk.

To Kill Wire Grass.

The so-called wire grasses are many. Such grasses as propagate by means of creeping root-stolks constantly reproduce new plants at the rooting joints, as couch or quack grass, Johnson grass, Bermuda grass and members of the blue-grass family. This pasture, if adapted to tillage, should be completely pulverized to the depth of four inches with a cutaway or disk harrow in July and kept harrowed once a week so long as the soil remains dry during the remainder of the season, allowing no green spear of grass to get a foothold.

By fall the mass of roots will be practically lifeless if the season has been normally dry and hot. The whole should then be turned under ten inches deep, using a jointer. In the spring, harrow every week until time to plant a cultivated crop, then keep perfectly clean and the battle will be won.

Kohlrabi.

In most sections of the north a good crop of kohlrabi may be grown if seed is sown not later than the middle of August. White Vienna is a good variety. See that the soil is well enriched with rotten manure before sowing the seed.

Pumpkins for Hogs and Cows.

It is surprising that more pumpkins are not fed to pigs and cows which have access to alfalfa pasture in the fall. For brood sows and shoats, and even for fattening hogs a ration of pumpkins will give good results. It has been found that raw pumpkin will give as good results as though they were cooked. If cooked and some grain sprinkled over them hogs will eat more of them, which is the only advantage. In feeding cows the seeds should be removed if fed in large quantities, for the seeds, if fed in considerable quantity, will inter-fer with the digestion and cause a decrease in the milk flow.

WEED OUT 'GRADE' STALLIONS

Effect of Breeding From Such Stock Is Apparent in Very Low Grade of Horses Produced.

The education of the average farmer
as to the importance of good breeding in the production of horses makes slow progress. The majority —and this is not over-stating the fact
—are not yet prepared to pay a decent price for stallion service, preferring to use scrubs because they are cheap.

Some of the states have passed stallion laws containing some excellent features. Wisconsin has a 1

centence law which prevents the previous sale of stallions.

Minnesota has a law framed along the lines of the Wisconsin measure.

Pennsylvania and Utah have adopted similar laws and other states have restrictive measures under consideration.

The effect of these laws is to make the owner of each non-registered stallion declare his horse a "grade." On handbills that are posters so that no one may be deceived as to his pedigree.

The situation abroad is very much better than in this country. In fact, practically no scrub, grade or non-registered stallions are used for publics service.

In the investigations of this matter carried on by Dr. A. S. Alexander of Wisconsin it was found that of all the stallions in the state, 60 per cent.

were grade stallions and only 40 per cent pure bred.

Some of the specimen horses used for public service are remarkable exhibitions of wretchedly bad, rundown and diseased animals. The illustrations are from photographs of a

"Grade Hambletonian" and a "Grade

Percheron," which traveled throughout the state for service. One is 13.3

hands in height and weighs 650 pounds, and he is not the worst in the lot, by any means.

The effect of breeding from such stock is apparent in the very low grade of horses produced. Water cannot rise above its level, neither can a grade stallion raise the blood level of his progeny above that of his own veins in quality.

The use of such sires, therefore,

means a retrogression and a great damage to the farmers of any state.

Don't overwork the mare; it won't pay.

It is as easy to teach a colt good manners as faulty ones.

If grass is short, be sure to feed a sufficient ration of some kind.

The manners of the horse usually reveal the temper of his owner.

A good Shropshire flock should average nine to ten pounds of wool.

Unless a man has a great love for a horse he should not handle colts.

It pays best to have a horse well worn when he is offered for sale.

The cause of unthrifty pigs can often be traced to a filthy swill barrel.

ELKS ARE ON THE RUN.

Special Rates Will Be Given
By L. & N. From Hopkinsville.

It is not only the owners, but also the citizens of Madisonville, that are preparing to open the new house of amusement Friday night, October 5th, with great eclat. And not only these. The local order of Elks is enthused. This order has just taken possession of its new and magnificent home and after the curtain falls on the last act of "The Yankee Girl" and the crowd has somewhat thinned out the antlered host will give a grand ball in honor of the opening of "The Garrack."

There will be many people from Hopkinsville present to see the curtain rise for the first time on the opening night. The L. & N. has made a special rate for the occasion. Parties can leave here on the Dixie Flyer at 6:25 p. m. going. Returning, they can leave Madisonville on the 11 o'clock train at night, reaching home at 12. Those that remain over at night so as to attend the ball can reach home the next morning at six; or they can take a later train arrive here at 9 o'clock next morning.

All persons having made up their minds to go had best make quick arrangements for their tickets. Tickets will be put on sale next Tuesday and indications point to a big rush. Reserved seats can be secured from Manager C. H. Bleich by addressing him at Madisonville. Promptly at 9 o'clock next Tuesday morning the sale of both general and reserved seats will begin and it is believed they will be taken as fast as they can be handed out. If you want to see Julie Ring in "The Yankee Girl" this is your chance.

GRAND LODGE

Will Meet In Louisville Next Tuesday for Three Days

For the first time in seven years the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias is to meet in Louisville next Tuesday. The following are the names of the representatives of Evergreen Lodge, No. 38:

G. H. Champlin, Frank Torian, A. M. Coleman, Herman Johnson, G. W. Walker, J. W. Stowe.

Col. Jouett Henry and Lucian Davis, both at present grand officers, will attend.

The party leaves here Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock and will remain during the sessions of the body, lasting three days. One of the main features will be the administering of the first rank to a class of 500.

PROPOSALS FOR SUPPLIES.

Sealed proposal will be received by the Kentucky State Board of Control for Charitable Institutions, at its office in Frankfort, Kentucky, until 12 o'clock noon, Tuesday, October 8, 1912, for an estimated supply for six months, of fresh beef and other fresh meats; for an estimated supply for six months of clothing, dry goods, shoes, hats, notions, etc. also for an estimated supply for three months of flour, meal, salted meats, lard, cooking oil, groceries and all food supplies for the three State Insane Asylums and the Feeble Minded Institute under control of this Board.

The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

For blank proposals and specifications apply to Geo. B. Caywood, Secretary, Frankfort, Ky.
